

PHILOSOPHY

- This institute believes that the nursing profession helps to sustain people's health at the local, national, and international levels.
- We are committed to providing the patient with compassionate, high-quality care in the hospital, community, and society.
- We acknowledge and appreciate human differences and the rights of diverse people with society In addition to providing ethical care with dignity and respect.
- We support evidence-based practice and compassionate care to deal with emerging challenges.
- The undergraduate nursing program focuses on developing critical thinking abilities and competences that align with both professional and human values.
- The curriculum equips its graduates to be model citizens who uphold professional conduct and a code of ethics at all times when carrying out their social, professional, and personal responsibilities in order to meet the goals of the nation.
- Primary responsibilities of graduates include providing care with a basic level of competence in delivering safe care, coordinating and managing care by actively participating in interprofessional teams, and supporting the profession by exhibiting self-responsibility and accountability for practice.
- We believe that research, innovative practice, leadership, teamwork, and ongoing assessment contribute to excellence and standards of care. Graduates of this program can work as experts, consultants, teachers, administrators, and future leaders in the healthcare industry in addition to providing holistic nursing care.
- We help students create a value system, grow personally and professionally, cultivate a learning attitude, and prepare for the problems and challenges that the healthcare system may present.